In this presentation, we explore the captivating world of light as a medium for artistic expression with Iole Alessandrini, an artist renowned for her groundbreaking use of Laser Plane Photography. Despite its intangibility, light plays a fundamental role in reshaping our perception of the world beyond traditional art forms. Iole's journey in the Arctic Circle using light as an artistic medium is a tale of inspiration, and an unquenchable thirst for understanding. Her Laser Plane Photography brings yet an original insight into a place in the world that plays a crucial role in maintaining our overall ecosystem's well-being.

Iole will also speak to us about her contributions to the recent Migration Project in Perugia, of which the Dante Society was among the sponsors.

Iole Alessandrini is an Italian-American artist known for her Laser Plane Photography and large scale installations. She holds Master's degrees from both the University La Sapienza in Rome, Italy, and the University of Washington in Seattle, the USA. Alessandrini is the recipient of numerous fellowships and awards and teaches at the DigiPen Institute of Technology and at Bellevue College. She is a licensed architect in Italy in the Lazio Region. Among her public art-light installations are: The Raven and The Light; Counterbalance Park; Capitol Hill Library; Westlake Fountain all in Seattle, and Luminous Forest in Edmonds. Her groundbreaking work on Laser Plane Photography (LPP), a photographic technique she invented, captures a light phenomenon in time exposure when objects and/or people move through the Laser Plane (Jack Straw Production 2004). She calls those photos Ioleograms™ her name + photograms. The LLP features in her recent expedition to the Arctic Circle.
